

2022 Upcoming Workshops

PSC's members and other attendees have been very supportive of the workshops that have been offered since the Spring of 2020, and the Society is most appreciative of the understanding that has been extended as new approaches to conducting workshops were developed and implemented to fit the constraints that were imposed by the pandemic.

Hopefully, the Society will soon be entering into a more comfortable and normalized environment where many of the unprecedented challenges and impediments presented by Covid-19 can be eliminated. With that mindset, the Society's Workshop Committee has been busy over the recent months developing plans for a mixture of both online and in person workshops through the end of 2022. Though much of what has been "put on the drawing board" remains tentative or still in the formative stages, the Committee wants to share the information with those caveats. As the plans become more definitive, this page will be the location where updates will be provided.

The following 2022 workshops are in the process of being finalized. Some are more specific and concrete than others. Starting in April, the current plan is to conduct the balance of our 2022 workshops in person. Given the ever-changing challenges of Covid 19, we will continue to assess whether it will be prudent to conduct these workshops in person, or whether it will be necessary to revert to offering them online if possible. Stay tuned for updates as information becomes available:

1. Karen Ness: "Adventures in Pointed Brush"; a weekend in-person workshop on June 11 and 12; class size limited to 30 students.
2. Suzie Beringer: "The Magic of the Parallel Pen"; In-person weekend workshop, July 23 and 24, 2022; class size limited to 30 students.

4. Elmo van Slingerland: in person for two 2-day workshops, the first on September 22 and 23, and the second on September 24 and 25; topics and titles to be forthcoming but completely different than his 2021 PSC online workshop; class size limited to approximately 25 students each.
5. Carl Rohrs: two different in-person workshops, one four days mid-week October 24- October 27, and the other on the weekend, October 29 and 30; topics and titles to be later announced; class sizes will be limited to 18 students per workshop.

The 2023 line up of wonderful instructors will be posted as soon as schedules are refined.
